Alhaurin el Grande is set in the most stunning of mountain sceneries; positioned on a wide and open fertile plain surrounded by the majestic Sierra de Mijas Mountains. The town couples the traditional and the contemporary. Offering a good selection of shops, restaurants and tapas bars, this pretty market town is just a little way from the hustle and bustle of the coast, yet with the new road infrastructure major towns like Marbella, Fuengirola, Toremolinos, Malaga and neighbouring Alhaurin de la Torre and Coin are only a short drive away. The centre has lots of history and there are a number of churches and monasteries scattered throughout the town. There are pretty parks and walkways, streams and fountains scattered around. Alhaurin has a modern library, hospital, sports facilities and a public swimming baths. There are two golf courses here, the Severiano Ballasteros designed Alhaurin Golf and the 27 hole Laura Golf. Alhaurin enjoys the sub-tropical Mediterranean climate, which has hot summers and warm winters. Divided from the sea by the mountains means the heat can soar in summer, but it remains comfortable for the most part. Temperatures are an average of 32 ºC in summer.
